15th ANNUAL
NYCAA SC
NEW YORK CITY ASIAN AMERICAN STUDENT CONFERENCE

THE HISTORY OF NYCAASC

The New York City Asian American Student Conference (NYCAASC) is an annual conference dedicated to addressing Asian Pacific American issues.

Organized by a committee of dedicated college and high school representatives from the New York City metropolitan area, NYCAASC has created an accessible space every April for activists and student leaders to discuss racial and socio-political issues since 2007. Featuring workshops along with local and nationally based speakers and performers, the conference encourages solidarity and initiative within the community and beyond.

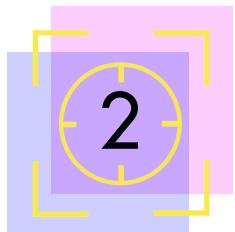

OUR 2021 THEME: SNAPSHOTS

Our conference this year is underscored by the fact that our current moment is a snapshot of a larger context.

As Asian Americans, we are interested in connecting current events and social trends with past cultural and political movements and the legacy of Asians in America. With not only the pandemic, but police brutality, natural disasters, and revolutions occurring worldwide, we find ourselves looking for ways to make sense of ourselves and the world around us.

While the past is the reason for our present, the future is dictated by our actions today, and as students and as citizens of the world, we want to move beyond passive understanding and have an active hand in shaping our future.
